Getting Ready for Accreditation with "Mini-Tracers"

These 90-minute, instructor-led virtual sessions are designed to help your team prepare for Accreditation using Mini-Tracers.

A Tracer is the method Accreditation Canada surveyors use during on-site visits to evaluate organizations against accreditation standards. By following the journey of a patient or process, surveyors ask questions and make observations to determine whether standards are being met.

These sessions will provide a practical overview of how Mini-Tracers can be used internally to strengthen readiness and ensure alignment with accreditation requirements.

Target Audience: Directors, Managers, and staff from all Health Authorities who may lead or participate in Mini-Tracers

Course objectives:

- Describe the Accreditation Canada surveyor tracer method
- Identify the four tracer steps
- Identify what is involved in planning and conducting Mini-Tracers within your Health Authority
- Recognize Mini-Tracers as a Quality Improvement Tool
- Apply the Mini-Tracer methodology to case studies
